NEWPORT IN WINTER.

It is really amusing to see what singular opinions are entertained by the people of other towns as to the condition of affairs in this city during the winter months. There are not a few who imagine that we are really the most forlorn and benighted community in the world. It is very pleasant, say they, in Newport in summer, but must be terribly dull in winter when the visitors are gone and there is nothing going on. It is seldom that we go abroad without bearing remarks of this nature, and receiving expressions of well meant sympathy from the friends who suppose themselves so much more highly favored. The experience of others is doubtless corroborative of our own, for the opinion referred to seems to prevail to a greater or less extent in all directions.

Whatever may have been the case in other years, it is now far from being a correct estimate of winter life in Newport. We have a resident population of from 12,000 to 15,000 persons.

These are generally as intelligent, as active, and as social as the same number of people in other localities. Human nature is the same as elsewhere. Newporters do not hibernate during cold weather nor sit down in idleness, as some of their neighbors would have it. They are as wide awake as the same number of persons in Fall River, New Bedford or Taunton. It is true we have not so many manufacturers as in those cities, but is there no social life except in a cotton mill? Must we have strikes, and street fights, and commercial failures on a large scale, and go on excursions to see "The Black Crook" in order to be considered a live town? So it would seem now that the lack of these things is put down so readily to our disadvantage.

Newport, in fact, is a delightful winter residence, as well as the most pleasant of summer resorts. Our climate at this season is much warmer than that of Providence or Boston, and certainly not worse in any respect than that of other seaport towns.

The largest and finest steamboats in New England waters come regularly to our wharves. Railway trains come and go many times in the day. There is sufficient business to give every man in the city steady and remunerative employment. The population is growing in numbers and rapidly increasing in wealth. All the elements of prosperity are with us, and the signs of progress are seen on every side. Newport, really, is much more lively and attractive in summer than the towns round about, and not the less so in winter.

This fact is beginning to be perceived by our friends from abroad who have their summer homes among us. More and more of these are every year making this their place of permanent residence. Not a few of our best families have come and are permanently established themselves here because of the attractions of the place in winter as well as in summer. And this process is likely to go on as the facts become more generally known and more fully appreciated.

The people of Newport may congratulate themselves on the advantages of their location as a residence for the whole year as well as in the fashionable season. They are not wholly dependent on strangers for the prosperity of the town, for there is sufficient energy and capability within her own bounds to make the city what it should be—one of the most prominent and attractive in America. Our friends from abroad must not suppose that all the life and soul of the place is gone when they choose to be absent. There are still enough left to "occupy and possess" the whole, and that too in a most satisfactory manner.

PROSPECTS OF THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The road will be complete to Virginia City, Nevada, 136 miles from Sacramento in the latter part of 1867; to Austin, 320 miles, by the fall of 1868; to Salt Lake City, 385 miles from Sacramento, in January, 1870; and if not then met by the Union Pacific Railroad, the company will keep on pushing eastward until they are stopped by the Union in its western progress. The road thus, with its equipment thus far has cost about $9,000,000, and before it is entirely finished to the State line, 150 miles from Sacramento, it will cost about $20,000,000 more. These figures tell the story of what difficulties had to be overcome. Had not the utmost carelessness been observed, too, these figures would have been greatly exceeded. At first, indeed, it was thought the cost of labor would be an insurmountable obstacle; and it might have been had not the company inaugurated a new industrial weapon by using Chinamen, of whom they employ some 8,000, at $30 per month. It has been found, too, despite prophecies to the contrary, that this class of labor is much more tractable than white, almost if not quite as effectual, man for man, and about 50 per cent. cheaper. In addition to Chinese laborers there are about 2,000 whites employed (all that can be obtained) who are paid an average of $10 per month, and are also boarded, which the Chinese are not. 1,200 horses and mules, and as many carts are used, and 350 kegs of blasting powder, costing $1 per keg, are daily consumed. These forces are used on the building of the road alone, and are exclusive of the force employed on the portion finished. For about fifteen miles this side of the summit of the Sierras the road has had to be run through solid granite; drilling and blasting, therefore, are constantly kept up, and all along this route there are three gangs of laborers, each of which work eight hours, the night and day through, all the seven days of the week.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Local Intelligence.

Snow Storm.—Winter evinces a tenacity of life which is certainly very striking, and not easily misunderstood with eighteen inches of snow on the streets, to say nothing of sundry bogie drifts across side walks, &c. It snowed almost incessantly from 6 o'clock Saturday evening to about the same hour last evening.

The several churches were mostly deserted, thirty or forty being the maximum of attendance at most of them, and in some instances the evening service was omitted.

At sunrise the thermometer was at 28, and a keen westerly wind, with the snow clad earth, is suggestive of anything but the "briny spring" of which poets sometimes tell us.

Insurance.—Several Insurance Companies in New York having lost heavily by the burning of property belonging to Jews, have decided heretofore to insure no one of that faith. At this the Jews are naturally indignant and a committee has been appointed to inquire into the matter. The fact itself speaks badly for the reputation of the men of that creed.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.—The General Assembly having completed its business has adjourned. Speaker Van Zandt has returned to Newport and appears in his office as Judge of the Probate Court. We shall publish the closing proceedings of the General Assembly to-morrow.

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY.—The programme for the celebration of this festival of the Catholic Church is being carried out notwithstanding the heroic state of the walking, and the several organizations turn out in good numbers and make fine appearance.

Court of Justices.—Monday February 18.—Before Justice Topham.—John Hughes, for raveling, was fined $8 and costs.

Matthew McNamee, for keeping open Sunday $5 and costs.

Patriot and Lawrence Ryan, for keeping open Sunday, each $5 and costs.

The Liquor Law.—In another column may be found a very clear and accurate exposition of the new liquor law which cannot be understood by the ordinary reader in the absence of such an analysis. It will doubtless be read with interest, as there is a general desire to understand its provisions. We have also in hand a severe criticism of the law from one of our leading temperance men which will appear to-morrow.

The Old Colony, due here at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, arrived at about 7 last evening, and the Empire State left for New York about the same hour.

SUPREME COURT.—The Supreme Court will commence its March term at the State House to-morrow morning.

The New Liquor Law.

The new license law recently passed by the General Assembly is among the most important of their acts and is a matter of more than ordinary public interest; and, although we have already published the law in due course among the proceedings of the Assembly, yet, in order to a more perfect understanding of its provisions and intent, we propose to give our readers herein an explanatory analysis, showing its bearing upon, and relation to previous enactments on the same subject, which are only alluded to in a technical form in the letter of the law already published. In order to do this understandingly, it will be necessary to present a concise statement of some of the previous legislation in this State for the regulation or restraint of the liquor traffic.

In May, 1852, the General Assembly in obedience to the then declared public opinion, passed an Act entitled "An Act for the Suppression of Drinking Houses and Tipping Shops." This was a strictly prohibitory law, and was modeled after the famous Maine Law of Neal Dow. This, it must be borne in mind, now stands among the Revised Statutes of the State as Chapter 73, but was rendered inoperative in 1863, by the passage of a license law.

After indifferent success in enforcing the prohibitory law, from various causes, some five years subsequent to its passage, the Legislature passed what may be termed a Supplemental Act, entitled "An Act for the Suppression of Nuisances," and generally known as the "Nuisance Act." It made all places used for the illegal sale of liquor, prostitution or gambling, or for the resort of idle, dissolute, noisy or disorderly persons—nuisances and indictable as such; and for the existence of these nuisances, landlords and tenants were both made liable, and held also responsible for their abatement. It went beyond the stringency of the prohibitory law of '52, inasmuch as it provided that to maintain a complaint brought under it, it was not necessary to prove a sale but the presence of the implements and appurtenances usually used in grogshops or tipping houses, and the notorious character of the persons visiting them, were sufficient, in proof, for conviction and punishment. This Act stands among the Revised Statutes as Chapter 73. The operation of this law, also, was modified by the passage of the license law of '63.

Further legislation on this subject was had in the passage of an Act entitled an Act "Of Licensed Houses." This Act empowered the different towns of the State to require through their municipal boards, all keepers of taverns, victualling houses, oyster houses, &c., to take out a license and to give a bond of $100 with sureties that they would not sell liquor or allow it to be sold on their premises, or harbor idle, dissolute or disorderly persons, &c., under a penalty of fifty dollars. This law is still extant and is chapter 77 of the Revised Statutes.

In the year 1863, owing to a considerable pressure brought to bear upon them from certain quarters, the Legislature passed an Act, entitled "An Act to Regulate and Restrict Sales of Intoxicating Liquors." This was a license law and repealed the Act of '52, (chapter 78), known as the prohibitory or Maine law, and so modified the other two as to allow of the sale of liquor in any quantities, under a license, with certain conditions and liabilities. This is chapter 44 of the Revised Statutes.

The operation of this last named law being deemed promotive of an increase of intemperance among the people, the friends of the cause of Temperance earnestly and generally petitioned the Legislature at its recent session for a repeal of the license law and a return to the prohibitory law.
